Letterhead

All Stars Sporting Goods was looking for a new image, to attract newer, younger customers without alienating their present customer base of older males. The solution was a logo that takes after design cues from older logos, yet feels modern and crisp.

MPC Productions provided a full package that not only included a new logo, but also a letterhead, envelope, and business card. The client was very satisfied with our work, as our work fit the needs of the brand perfectly, provide a timeless look that will last, never truly going out of style, while not seemingly being overly modern and trendy.

Client 2 - Pasta Amore

Brochure

Website

MPC Productions was asked by Pasta Amore, a up and coming Italian restaurant designed to cater to a family audience, to use their existing logo and colors to create a variety of items, which included a table tent, a brochure, and a menu. In addition, we were also asked to create a modern, dynamic website.

The idea "Simpler is Better", and thus, materials were intended to get the best visual impact, but not be overly fancy as be overwhelming or superfluous, a retro-style, reminiscent of the 1940s or 1950s was chosen, to give a sense of escapism from the modern world and make Pasta Amore feel like a unique place to get away from all the troubles. The results were very well-received by the client.

MPC Productions was asked by Anole Works to create logos, documents, and a website for their new business, which focuses on wooden products for model railroads.

The idea "Simpler is Better" was true here, as the documents were meant to be nice-looking, yet not overly obstrusive. The overall style was inspired by many old-time model railroad manufacturers, giving a cozy and accessible feel. All of the items were well-received.
